

Hikes > 10 km, starting and ending at the Visitor Reception Centre

Airport – Yukon River, 11.2 km, p. 1

Whitehorse’s version of an urban hike: waterfront, industrial, residential, airport escarpment, ball diamonds, campground, Rotary Centennial Bridge and Millennium Trail. You can visit Main Street attractions, our library, the new Kwanlin Dün Cultural Centre, Shipyards Park, community gardens, take in some of the lower escarpment parks, our very own Stairmaster and get great views over Downtown and the river valley. You can stop and see the Fish Ladder and the S.S. Klondike National Historic site, the Territorial Government building and Rotary Centennial Park.

Long Lake, 11.1 km, p. 2

A fast way to get a nice hike in our urban wilderness, this hike is a delightful way to walk along the Yukon river, on paths along the river and on the high clay cliffs overlooking Downtown and our industrial big box neighborhoods. You’ll walk on undulating glacial topography left as Glacial Lake xxxx drained over 10,000 years ago, leaving many lakes and pothole lakes.

Yukon Arts Centre, 11.2 km, p. 3

An in-town walk to a centre of culture: Yukon Arts Centre, Yukon Gallery, Yukon Archives and Yukon College. Our need of better walking connections will be apparent as you’ll be walking alongside some busy roads. You will however get lots of views and looks at a number of neighbourhoods.

Millennium Trail – Hidden Lakes, 14.0 km, p. 5

.....

Go-T direct, 14.3 km, p. 6

Grey Mountain at xxxx feet is one of our most prominent landmarks. This hike tries to provide a fast hike to get close to the ridge. Where this trail turns back downhill, you can take a further hike uphill on Mother T.

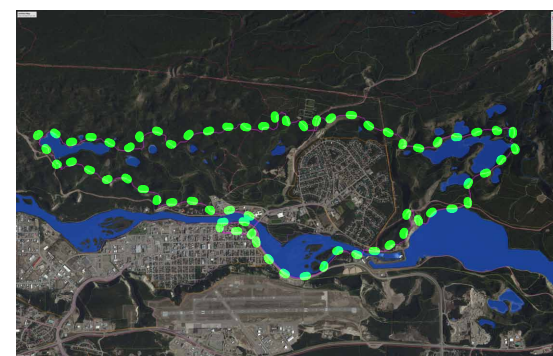

Go-T scenic, 17.0 km, p. 7

Like Go T direct, this loop gets you higher up Grey Mountain, but it takes a more indirect route back on the nice Hilarious Trail.

Millennium Trail – Schwatka Lake – Miles Canyon, 17.0 km , p. 8

This loop mostly follows close to the river in a mix of paved Millennium Trail, along some of the Yukon River Trail Marathon, along Schwatka Lake and the picturesque Miles Canyon.
